In 2018 we published the findings of Europe's first Randomised Control Trial (RCT) of FAST, which found that the programme can be an effective mechanism for engaging parents in their children's early education. FAST was also shown to have a positive impact on children's social and behavioural outcomes, remarkably, for the whole year group and not just the children who participated. 83% of parents that began FAST attended six or more sessions, which is an unusually high retention rate.
